TA-LA-KA-PA-KEE
WHERE A DREAM
WAS BORN

In the 1970s Sedona had only one spotlight and the area was mostly an open range, but visionary businessman Abe Miller saw the potential for more. A traveler, Abe had spent time in Mexico where he became enthralled with its vibrant arts scene—in particular, that of a small arts and crafts village outside of Guadalajara that would become our village's namesake, Tlaquepaque (Ta-la-ka-pa-kee). It was Abe's dream to establish a place for artists where they could collectively create and sell their work.

At that time, Abe also fell in love with Sedona. In particular a unique piece of property on Oak Creek with a distinctive 100-year-old sycamore grove. He knew he had found the place to bring his arts and crafts village to life. It took two years of being persistent, but Abe finally acquired this piece of land from its owners Harry and Ruby Girard, assuring them that their beloved sycamores would remain untouched (a promise he kept and that we continue to honor today).

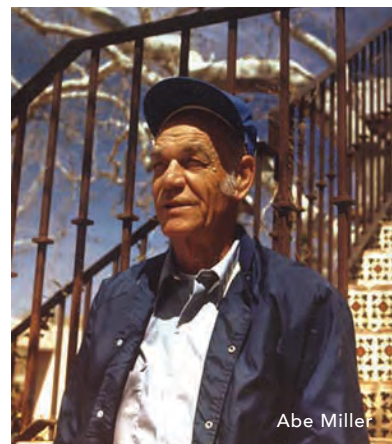

BRINGING MEXICO TO SEDONA

To express his vision, Abe collaborated with a gifted and unconventional local architect, Bob McIntyre. As the story goes, Bob, Abe, and Bill Herrick, the contractor, flew Abe's plane all over Mexico and ventured into small villages to photograph, sketch, and document their look and feel. They studied how they were constructed—the materials, their structural components, detailing and flow—with a goal to build Tlaquepaque as authentically as possible. They photographed thousands of scenes from rural villages and sketched dozens of vignettes of Spanish Colonial architecture.

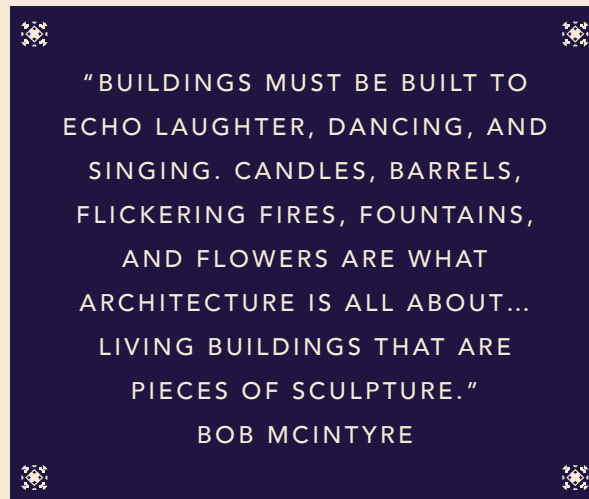

When Bob and Abe came upon a small village, they would sit and watch for hours, coming to know the importance of how people, gardens, fountains, and trees shaped social interaction in a public space. They carefully studied the architecture. They were soul searching, discovering what life really looked like in rural Mexico and what architectural elements they should embrace, taking particular note of how the patios, courtyards, tiled walls, and plazas created natural gathering places for the villagers to sell their crafts and mingle together.

They began to bring artifacts reflecting Mexican culture back to Sedona—iron grillwork, huge carved doors, handmade lanterns, clay pots, and benches were incorporated into the architecture to create the genuine feel and spirit of Tlaquepaque.

In keeping with his unconventional ways, Bob McIntyre purposely hired only amateur artisans and self-trained plasterers, chosen for their heart and enthusiasm for the project. No professional stonemasons were on the crew. He gave tremendous artistic freedom to the workers who “loved to be turned loose on a wall and watch it grow under their hands.” If they weren't happy with their day's work, Abe allowed them to tear it down and start over. “Forget the plumb, use the thumb,” was a favorite saying on the construction site. Very little of Tlaquepaque was sketched out on paper. Everything was eyeballed, keeping the basic orders of columns and capitals, but allowing for variables. It was all part of what gave Tlaquepaque its authenticity and unique charm.

THE LEGACY CONTINUES

In 2015 Tlaquepaque North, located on the other side of Sedona's highway 179, was carefully built to maintain Abe and Bob's original spirit and authentic design.

Here too, no detail was overlooked. With its gracious central fountain, stuccoed walls, hand-painted murals, tiles, elegant archways and pavers throughout, the new structure gives the impression that it too has stood there for years. Signature giant Sycamore trees and colorful flower beds add to its inimitable style. A beautifully renovated former cobblestone home can also be found on the grounds. The only structure that was retained during the renovation, it is now home to one of Tlaquepaque and Sedona's most loved restaurant, Pump House Station Urban Eatery and Market.

The shops and galleries of Tlaquepaque North have been carefully curated to add to the visitors' experience, providing them with even more choices to explore and discover what the arts and shopping village has to offer. Sophistication and style abound. Come to visit and see for yourself.

LOCATED AT THE HEART OF SEDONA, TLAQUEPAQUE OFFERS A PLACE FOR ART COLLECTORS, DISCERNING SHOPPERS AND GUESTS TO EXPERIENCE A RARE TREASURE AS THEY CELEBRATE ART, ENTERTAINMENT, BEAUTY, AND COMMUNITY.

El Rincon

Ristorante Mexicano

El Rincon Ristorante Mexicano, a Tlaquepaque icon, is worth celebrating! Not just for its food, but also its original entrepreneurship and ongoing pioneer spirit. A mainstay of Tlaquepaque since 1976, this family-run business was the arts and shopping village's first restaurant and some 40-plus years later continues to be one of its most popular locations. Founded by Demetri Wagner and his mother Gloria, their legacy continues under the leadership of Demetri's son, Jeramya. He grew up in the restaurant and fondly remembers his families perfectly moist pulled chicken tacos and playing hide and seek and catching lizards with his brother Clay in Tlaquepaque's labyrinth of hallways.

"EL RINCON IS A BLEND OF REGIONAL CUISINE;
WE WANT YOU TO FEEL FREE TO ASK QUESTIONS AND EXPERIMENT."

-JERAMYA FRANKEL

Housed in Tlaquepaque's first building, El Rincon and the arts and shopping village have grown up together. Demetri, who was a 28-year-old silversmith turned first-time restaurant owner, convinced Tlaquepaque's founder Abe Miller to put his trust into him and his family. Fortunately, they had an immediate success on their hands.

Serving a unique Arizona-style of cuisine that blends traditional Spanish and Mexican cooking with Navajo and Hopi influences, its food made with the finest ingredients attracted visitors and locals alike. Many of El Rincon's signature dishes use Navajo Fry bread as a base in place of traditional Mexican corn or flour tortillas. A favorite indigenous dish, fry bread can be eaten as a savory or a sweet. As Jeramya notes, his family's preferred way to eat it is as a Navajo Pizza, "when the bread is a bit crunchy and with a handful of fresh veggies on top." Accompanied by their renowned Margaritas, voted the best in Sedona by many, this is a perfect meal. Made with homemade sweet and sour, El Rincon Margaritas can be savored in unique local flavors such as Prickly Pear and Jalapeño.

"I really feel that El Rincon connects with the soul of the Verde Valley, home to the Navajo, Hopi and Mexican settlers for centuries and centuries," says Demetri, "Over the years we have remained true to our culinary roots, tweaking things here and there, but always keeping this essential connection."

With its patio located under the sycamore trees, El Rincon is the perfect place to enjoy an outdoor meal. Spring through fall they offer "Flamenco in the Courtyard." Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights from 5:30 pm to 7:30 pm, you can enjoy the music of master guitarist and long-time friend of Demetri, Gaetano. He and his collaborators bring together what Demetri calls "two of life's greatest pleasures," food and music, as they perform authentic Flamenco music and dancing.

MARGARITA RECIPE

FROZEN MARGARITA FOR ONE

El Rincon's recipe is top secret, but here's a margarita to try at home. The key is the fresh lime juice, and kosher salt on the rim.

INGREDIENTS:

- 2 OZ TEQUILA, MADE FROM 100 PERCENT AGAVE (BLANCO PREFERRED)
- 1 OZ COINTREAU
- 1 OZ FRESH LIME JUICE
- 1 CUP ICE
- KOSHER SALT FOR GARNISH

PREPARATION:

Add tequila, Cointreau, fresh lime juice and ice into a blender. Blend until smooth, adding more ice if needed. Lightly moisten rim of glass with water. Hold glass upside down and dip rim into salt. Pour frozen drink into glass and garnish with a lime wedge. Enjoy!

GAETANO:

FROM SEVILLA TO SEDONA

SHARING HIS LOVE FOR FLAMENCO

Gaetano Frankel has been a part of the Tlaquepaque family since the early 1980's, when he began his collaboration as a strolling musician inside of El Rincon. An expert Flamenco Guitarist and Singer, he grew up in the old quarters of the historical and vibrant Spanish city of Sevilla, the birthplace of Flamenco. It was here that at a young age he gained his love of this style of music and mastery of Flamenco guitar. We had a chance to catch up with Gaetano between one performance and another to learn more about him and his craft.

DT: Gaetano, tell us a little about growing up on Sevilla and how you decided to make flamenco your life-long craft?

G: Growing up in Sevilla was a life-changing experience, flamenco music and festivals were a colorful part of Andalusian life. My inspiration for learning flamenco came from the orange, tree-lined streets in the Barrio Santa Cruz where I was fortunate to hear through dreamy nights the wailing flamenco singers and fiery dancers performing outside my window until early morning.

DT: You have a unique, charismatic style, can you describe it for us and tell us how it developed?

G: Flamenco music has two styles: one is serious, called deep song (cante jondo); the other is very festive and fun, that is called joyful songs (cante alegre). I enjoy incorporating them both into my music. My travels through South America also influenced my traditional flamenco by creating an up-tempo Latin beat with the integrity of the soulful spirit of flamenco.

DT: As with many members of the Tlaquepaque community, your work is also a "family business." Describe what it's like working with your wife, singer Erika Delgadillo, and son, percussionist Arcio, as well as what it means to you to share this love for music and performing.

G: I am fortunate to be able to perform with talents like my wife and son, as well as Adriel Perrault and special guest Patrick Ki. A synergy occurs when we are playing together. We perform original music inspired by traditional gypsy flamenco, romantic ballads, and stormy Latin Rumbas.

DT: Lastly, what does flamenco mean to you? And what do you hope to impart to others through your performances?

G: Flamenco is an expression of life itself in its deepest emotion, how we feel and where we have been.

Our goal is to bring the audience and performers together enjoying that journey, through joyful music and friendship. I have played concerts and music festivals all over the world, but one of my favorite places to perform is in this intimate setting of Tlaquepaque. The guest can feel the heartfelt music as a magical Sedona night unfolds.

In addition to his family, Gaetano often performs with the Flamenco Company Mosaico, a group of professional dancers and musicians who bring down the house as they show off their colorful rhythmic footwork, clapping and soulful songs.

Come enjoy the passionate rhythms of Gaetano, his family, and friends during their sunset flamenco performances Sundays, Mondays and Tuesdays, 5:30-7:30 pm, spring through fall, in Tlaquepaque's Patio de las campanas.

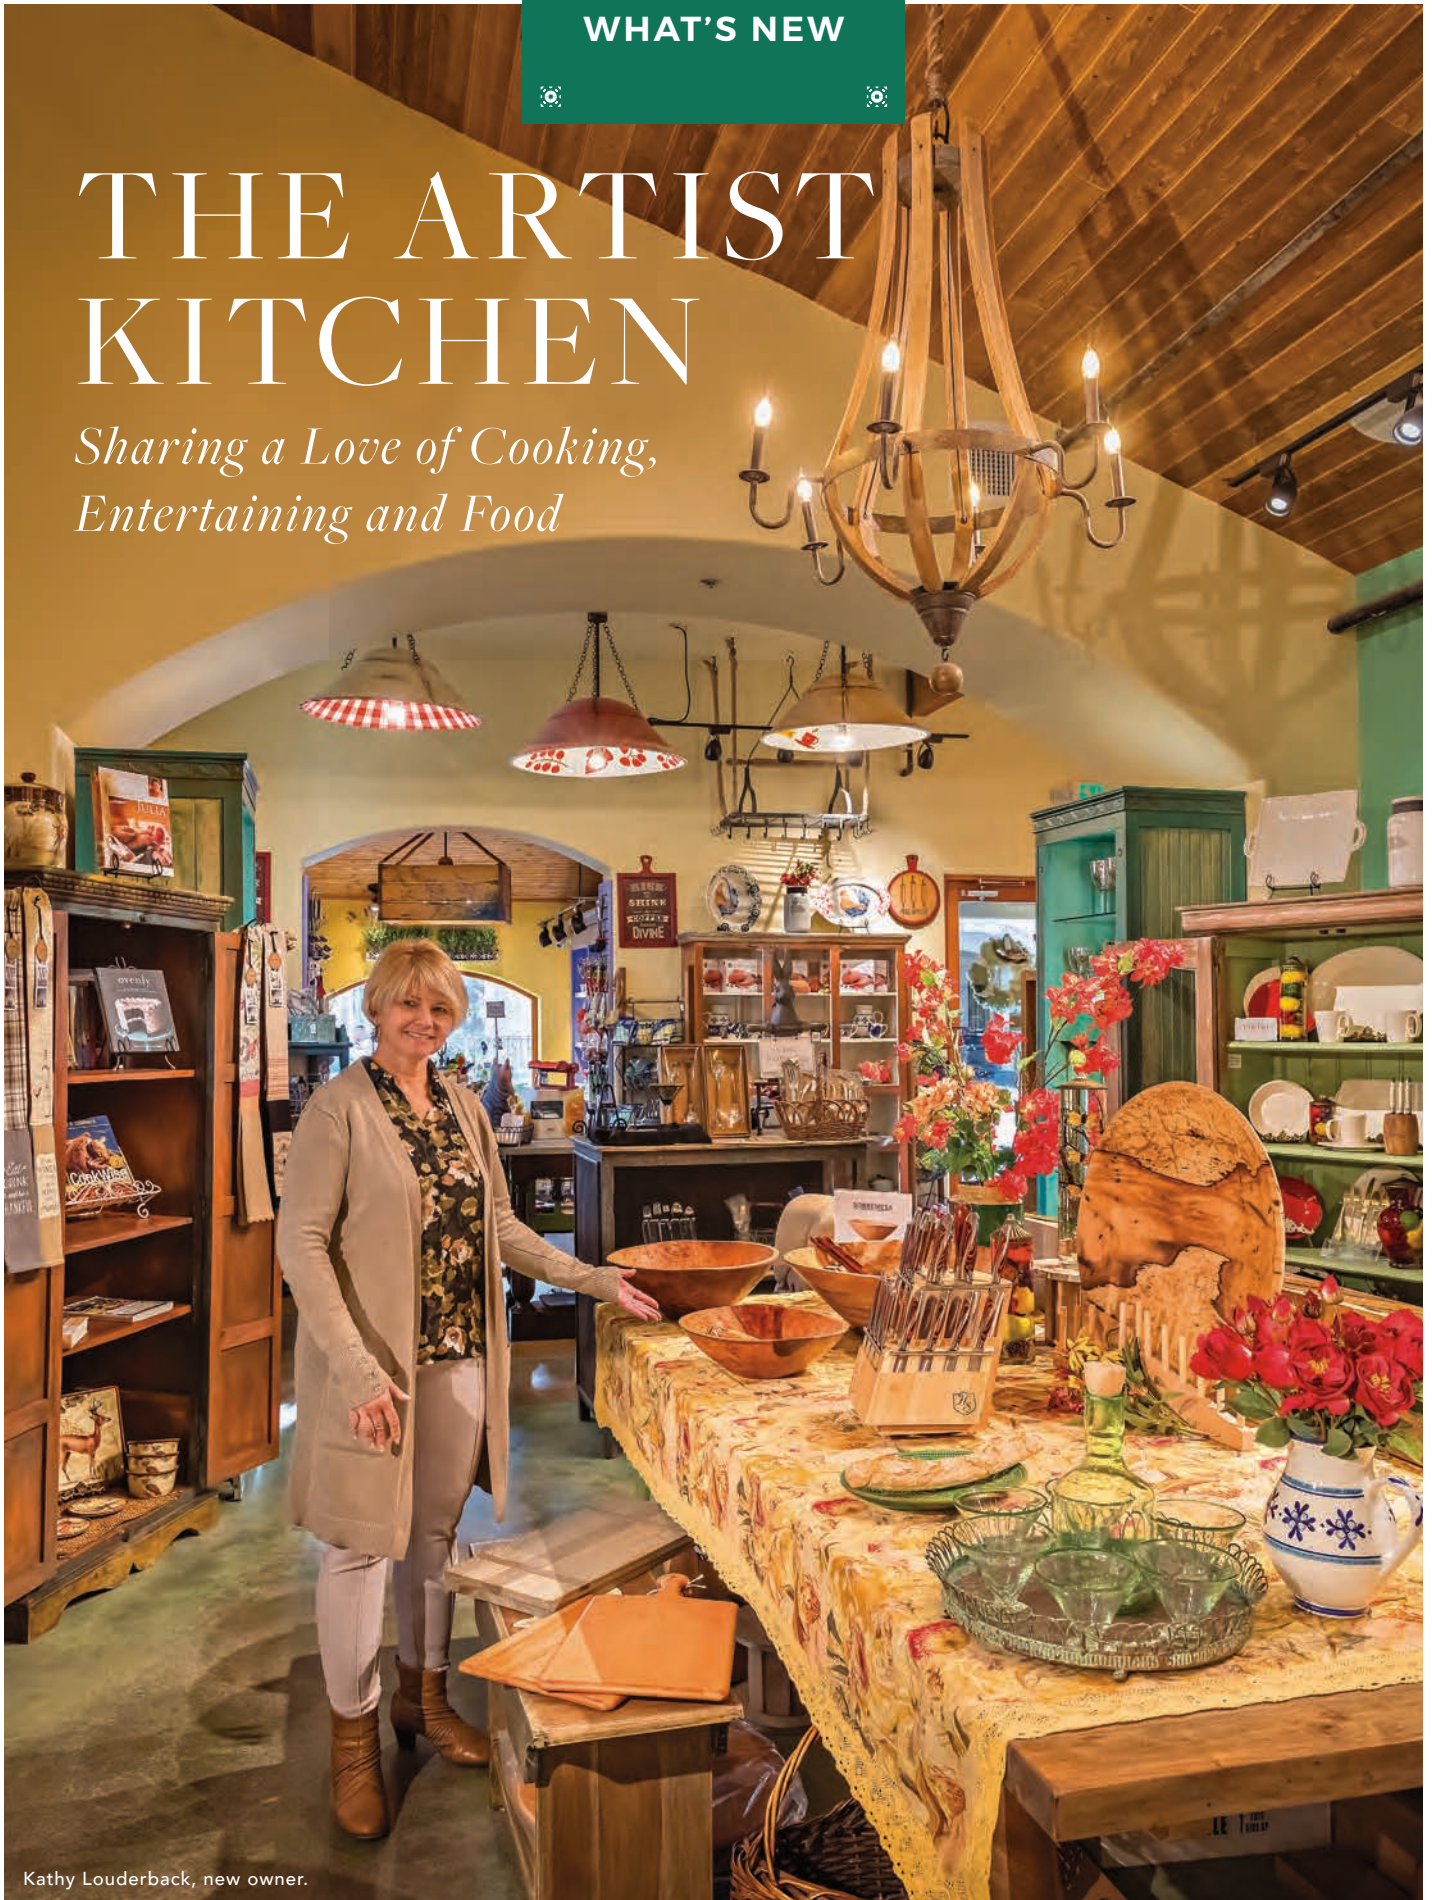

Gaetano's new CD will be released in 2019 featuring original and traditional Flamenco played and performed by the Sedona Bolero Flamenco Ensemble.

Enjoy the rhythm of Flamenco and Latin beats, the sounds of the mariachi, and the swirls of dancers performing throughout our village.

Cinco de Mayo—which translates to the Fifth of May— was originally the date of Mexico’s surprise 1862 victory over the French at the Battle of Puebla during the Franco-Mexican war. Over the years it has become a highly celebrated holiday in the United States to commemorate Mexico and its eventual independence. Come to observe it with us! A free event for the whole family. Get ready for enthralling Flamenco music and dancing performed by renowned local performers, Gaetano Mosaico Flamenco. Be wowed by the talented dancers of Ballet Folklorico, a dance troupe of all ages, twirling and swirling in colorful, time-honored costumes. Enjoy the voices of traditional vocalists ringing out throughout our arts and shopping village, and stroll alongside the roaming Mariachi. Activities for children will include face painting and the highly anticipated breaking of the piñata.

“It was always Tlaquepaque founder Abe Miller’s vision to celebrate Mexican culture and arts right here on our beautiful grounds,” says Wendy Lippman, general manager, and resident partner, “ It has been my pleasure to continue this meaningful legacy .”

AZADI NAVAJO RUGS

*PROMOTING & PRESERVING
THE WORK OF NAVAJO WEAVERS*

Azadi, one of the oldest family-owned rug weaving companies in the world, runs two flourishing rug shops at Tlaquepaque. Their Navajo Rug Room was opened in 2015 to provide its visitors with rug art that is a lasting reminder of a visit to Sedona and the Southwest while connecting them to the culture of the Navajo Nation and its weavers.

Few things are more identified with the Southwest than a Navajo rug. These works of art are acclaimed worldwide for their unique style and aesthetics; Navajo women have long held the belief that weaving them was a spiritual gift given to them by an other-worldly being, the Spider Woman. Filled with traditional motifs and symbols, these rugs tell the story of the Navajos' history and culture.

Today the weavers, still primarily female, have distinct styles that often represent the Navajo Nation region they are from. They pass on their craft from generation to generation to generation. For them, weaving is about more than an art form; it's a livelihood, a way to support their families. Azadi is devoted to helping them do this and to ensuring that this art form is not lost.

Highlighted within this article are two Navajo Nation families whose work is an important part of the Azadi collection.

"EACH OF THESE FAMILIES ARE UNIQUELY TALENTED, CREATING TEXTILES THAT REFLECT THEIR CULTURAL HERITAGE, AS WELL
AS WHERE THE FUTURE OF THIS INCREDIBLE ART FORM IS GOING.
I'M HONORED TO WORK WITH ALL OF THEM. THEIR FAMILY BOND IS WHAT MAKES THIS ALL WORK."

-RICHARD HARVEY, GALLERY DIRECTOR

Emily Malone & The Spider Rock Girls

Emily Malone and her family, make up a large weaving dynasty spanning four generations, with her now-deceased grandmother, Naglendebeh Tsosie, the original weaving matriarch.

Emily, like many Navajo weavers, began weaving at a young age. She was taught by her mother, master weaver Rose Yazzie. In turn, Emily has now taught all of her four daughters—LaVera, Larissa, Laramie, and Alyssa. Together they are known as The Spider Rock Girls. A lovely name that harkens back to both the place they are from and the being that bestowed the power to weave on them, the Spider Woman.

“The name came from the Spider Rock Rug,” Emily explains. “My niece, Harriet Whitney, and my daughter, LaVera Ambrose, took a rug to a trading post in Sanders, AZ. The trader didn’t recognize the rug style, so he decided to call it ‘Spider Rock Rug.’” This rug has become their signature style. It is woven using black yarn as the background and scraps, often from their mother’s weaving, are used to create the design.

For those who are not familiar with it, Spider Rock is a remarkable sandstone spire that rises some 700 feet up from the floor of Canyon De Chelly. Emily’s mother still has a Hogan (a traditional Navajo home) at its base that they regularly visit in the summertime.

To ensure that Emily’s work and that of her daughters can be uniquely identified, they each have a signature icon that they weave into their rugs. Emily’s is a feather.

She explains that the Navajo do not wear feathers in their headdresses, but they do believe that the gods recognize you by your feather. “It’s not visible, but it is part of your Identity.”

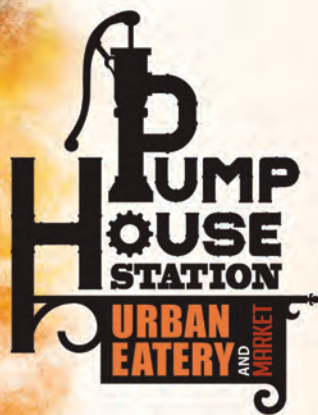

Her daughters each have their own mark too, with a unique meaning, except for Alyssa, who at 15, is still developing her own design sense and weaving identity.

In addition to weaving, Emily and the Spider Rock Girls are avid teachers, holding classes in Chinle, AZ. “Teaching is important to us,” Emily explains. “We want the next generation to carry on the tradition. My girls have taught one another how to weave. This helps them to establish a close bond to each other and to be well-grounded. My girls have been weaving all through grade school and college. Rug weaving is something they will always fall back on.”

For Emily, who has been a weaver for over forty years, weaving holds a deep meaning for her. It provides her with a spiritual connection to the world, life around her, and her family.

“I HAVE A FLOCK OF SHEEP THAT I

Sisters, Bessie & Darlene Littleben

The Littleben sisters, Bessie and Darlene, are two of seven Navajo sisters, all of whom are weavers who learned their craft and trade from their mother, Lucy.

Living in the Northern Arizona Navajo lands, near the famous Four Corners, the Littleben sisters are specialized in Teec Nos Pos textiles—meaning “Trees in a circle”—that is named after a trading post in the area that was encircled by Cottonwoods. This style of rug, influenced by Persian and Middle Eastern textiles, is known for its tightly woven, intricate symmetrical designs including strong diagonal compositions and highly decorative, often zig, zag borders. A signature element of the Teec Nos Pos is also the use of an extensive color palette—and The Littleben sisters are known for taking this to another level. As Richard of Azadi notes,

“THEIR BEAUTIFUL RUGS CAN INCORPORATE OVER 90 COLORS
THAT THEY HAVE CAREFULLY
CHOSEN TO DEVELOP A UNIQUE, HARMONY OF HUES.”

A rug is an heirloom piece of art that can be passed on for generations. These talented Navajo Nation weavers are dedicated to their families, their culture and their craft. Azadi Navajo Rugs helps them to share this with you. Stop by the gallery to see these beautiful rugs and more.

JUST MARRIED

EVERYTHING THEY DREAMED OF
IN THE HEART OF SEDONA

Francisca and Eugenio Gutierrez were married at Tlaquepaque on May 26, 2017. Residents of Phoenix, they came north to Sedona, drawn to Tlaquepaque for its small paved streets, fountains, lush landscaping, and art shops. For them, Tlaquepaque was a picture-perfect setting to join with friends and family as they dined, danced and celebrated under-the-stars on the Calle Independencia.

“Tlaquepaque is the

FLOYD'S

CORNER

TLAQUEPAQUE IS A PET-FRIENDLY ENVIRONMENT

Our mascot, the golden retriever Floyd, can often be seen tail wagging as he makes the rounds of our courtyards and patios, greeting visitors and ensuring that all is well.

He and the staff of Tlaquepaque want to remind you that pets are welcome on our grounds and should not be left in your cars, especially during the warmer months. However, they must be kept on a leash at all times for their safety and that of our other guests.

Thank you and we hope to see you soon!
