Welcome to Tlaquepaque (pronounced Ta•la•ka•pa•kee), the most distinct arts and shopping experience in the Southwest.

A landmark since the early 1970s, Tlaquepaque is authentically fashioned after the quaint village with the same name located on the outskirt of Guadalajara. The name, which means the “best of everything” in ancient Aztec, is befitting of our arts and shopping village. Our vine-covered walls, cobblestone streets, and tiled fountains, will transport you to another time and place—and we all need that right now!

Although we had to postpone many of our highly anticipated annual events last year, we hope you’ll be able to join us on May 1 for our Cinco de Mayo fiesta. Stop by to enjoy weekly entertainment from Tlaquepaque resident musicians and other performers. A complete schedule of events can be seen on page 2.

Wonderful new products and artwork are ready for you to discover in our renowned galleries and shops, as well as new foods and treats to taste in our restaurants and cafes.

We continue to work on providing you with a safe and clean environment. As mandated by the city of Sedona, the wearing of masks is required by all. We request that you follow the local guidelines and those recommended by the CDC to ensure everyone’s health and safety.

Whether you have an hour, an afternoon, or a day, there is always something unique to discover at Tlaquepaque.

I hope to see you here soon!

Masks are required as mandated by the City of Sedona and Social Distancing will be enforced.
In the 1970s Sedona had only one stoplight and the area was mostly an open range, but visionary businessman Abe Miller saw the potential for more. A traveler, Abe had spent time in Mexico where he became enthralled with its vibrant arts scene—in particular, that of a small arts and crafts village outside of Guadalajara that would become our village’s namesake, Tlaquepaque (Ta-la-ka-pa-kee). It was Abe’s dream to establish a place for artists where they could collectively create and sell their work.

At that time, Abe also fell in love with Sedona. In particular a unique piece of property on Oak Creek with a distinctive 100-year-old sycamore grove. He knew he had found the place to bring his arts and crafts village to life. It took two years of being persistent, but Abe finally acquired this piece of land from its owners Harry and Ruby Girard, assuring them that their beloved sycamores would remain untouched (a promise he kept and that we continue to honor today).

To express his vision, Abe collaborated with a gifted and unconventional local architect, Bob McIntyre. As the story goes, Bob, Abe, and Bill Herrick, the contractor, flew Abe’s plane all over Mexico and ventured into small villages to photograph, sketch, and document their look and feel. They studied how they were constructed—the materials, their structural components, detailing and flow—with a goal to build Tlaquepaque as authentically as possible. They photographed thousands of scenes from rural villages and sketched dozens of vignettes of Spanish Colonial architecture.

When Bob and Abe came upon a small village, they would sit and watch for hours, coming to know the importance of how people, gardens, fountains, and trees shaped social interaction in a public space. They carefully studied the architecture. They were soul searching, discovering what life really looked like in rural Mexico and what architectural elements they should embrace, taking particular note of how the patios, courtyards, tiled walls, and plazas created natural gathering places for the villagers to sell their crafts and mingle together. They began to bring artifacts reflecting Mexican culture back to Sedona—iron grillwork, huge carved doors, handmade lanterns, clay pots, and benches were incorporated into the architecture to create the genuine feel and spirit of Tlaquepaque.

In keeping with his unconventional ways, Bob McIntyre purposely hired only amateur artisans and self-trained plasterers, chosen for their heart and enthusiasm for the project. No professional stonemasons were on the crew. He gave tremendous artistic freedom to the workers who “loved to be turned loose on a wall and watch it grow under their hands.” If they weren’t happy with their day’s work, Abe allowed them to tear it down and start over. “Forget the plumb, use the thumb,” was a favorite saying on the construction site. Very little of Tlaquepaque was sketched out on paper. Everything was eyeballed, keeping the basic orders of columns and capitals, but allowing for variables. It was all part of what gave Tlaquepaque its authenticity and unique charm.
“BUILDINGS MUST BE BUILT TO ECHO LAUGHTER, DANCING, AND SINGING. CANDLES, BARRELS, FLICKERING FIRES, Fountains, and Flowers are what Architecture is all about... Living buildings that are pieces of sculpture.”

BOB McINTYRE
TLAQUEPAQUE ARCHITECT
THE LEGACY CONTINUES

In 2015 Tlaquepaque North, located on the other side of Sedona’s highway 179, was carefully built to maintain Abe and Bob’s original spirit and authentic design. Here too, no detail was overlooked. With its gracious central fountain, stuccoed walls, hand-painted murals, tiles, elegant archways and pavers throughout, the new structure gives the impression that it too has stood here for years. Signature giant Sycamore trees and colorful flower beds add to its inimitable style. A beautifully renovated former cobblestone home can also be found on the grounds. The only structure that was retained during the renovation, it is now home to one of Tlaquepaque and Sedona’s most loved restaurant, Pump House Station Urban Eatery and Market.

The shops and galleries of Tlaquepaque North have been carefully curated to add to the visitors’ experience, providing them with even more choices to explore and discover what the arts and shopping village has to offer. Sophistication and style abound. Come to visit and see for yourself.

BOWWOW BOUTIQUE

OWNER

Until now, the needs of our local furry friends have been underserved. Bowwow Sedona, the area’s premier pet boutique at Tlaquepaque North, provides quality clothing, toys, treats, hiking gear, and accessories for four-legged family members. Kathy Louderback, the owner of The Artist’s Kitchen Shop, created Bowwow with a vision of offering only the best items for your pet. With brand names like Hurtta, Hip Doggie, Chilly Dog, and Pendleton, you are bound to find just what you’ve been looking for at Bowwow Sedona boutique—for the most finicky of felines too.

Be sure to come enjoy local four-legged friends styled-out in Bowwow’s latest collections on Sunday, April 25 from 1:00-3:00 p.m. in the “Paws Rock the Runway” event raising funds for the Sedona Humane Society. Selling “contemporary high-desert style” is something Adorn owner and long-time Arizona resident Lori Harnett is an expert on. The new collections in her second location continue to deliver this southwest-flair with larger works of art and furniture for the home, office, and garden.

Lori and her husband and business partner, Andy, work to ensure guests have a memorable experience in their shops and take home items they genuinely enjoy. To illustrate this, Lori describes an encounter she recently had with two men who came into the shop with their wives. The men were intrigued with the shop’s new interactive sand art collection.

“They were staring at them quizzically,” Lori recalls. “So I went over to answer their questions and demonstrate how they work. Both men ended up purchasing one.”

A few weeks later, Lori received a call from one of them. “He wanted to order another one as a gift for his brother,” she explains. “He told me how much he and his friend were enjoying theirs. They constantly text back and forth the sand art formations they created.” This kind of customer satisfaction is what Lori and Andy strive for. “The same man called back again at Christmas to order two more to give as gifts!”

Come visit the new Adorn shop (and stop by the old one too!) and let Lori, Andy, and their team help you identify the perfect item to add to your home.

Lori and Andy work hard to ensure they have a unique product offering. Many of their collections are made by local-area artists, including:

- Repurposed barrel racks, signs, chairs, and footstools crafted in Flagstaff by artist Jeff Caylor and his team at Barrel Werks.
- Prolific artist Rick Rowley offers whimsical and otherworldly items from functional food-safe glazed pieces, intricate fine art sculptures, canvas prints, paintings, and his chainsaw carvings created on Yavapai Apache land in Camp Verde.
- Metal garden sculptures from Henry’s Design in Humbolt, AZ, continue to be a part of the Adorn offering. They include his signature rusted steel bats, owls, cats, quail, javelina, and roadrunners that have delighted Tlaquepaque visitors for years.
- The work of local Sedona resident and artist Robert Shields (the other half of the performing duo Shields and Yarnell) is a new addition to the Adorn collection. His work focuses on colorfully hand-painted metal art with beautiful texture and detail. Each piece is hand-signed by the artist.
This winter Spirits & Spice introduced a limited edition artisan-crafted tequila to its collection. This small-batch, 12 year Extra Anejo, is in short supply, so stop by soon for a bottle. 100% blue agave, Spirits & Spices’ tequila unites the artistry of master distillers and ceramists’ to bring you a unique, exceptional spirit.

This tequila presents a beautiful, brilliant amber hue with red and gold tones. The aroma gives off notes of oak, chocolate, vanilla, cola, and spice. The palate is rich and seductive with vanilla flavors, caramel, toasted oak, and fresh citrus balanced perfectly with the iconic pepper and vegetal flavors of the best Tequilas. Aged well beyond Extra Anejo requirements, this magnificent spirit is matched in quality with its hand-painted, one-liter ceramic bottle, making it beautiful on the inside and out.

We had a chance to catch up with Spirits & Spice owner Kim Weiss about this addition to her collection. She shared with us what makes this project and product so special.

DT: Tell us about your new signature tequila and what makes it unique.

KW: I love it! This amazing product is made with care by producers who are stewards of the land and want to preserve both the environment and their own culture. We searched for this kind of partner and got lucky to find the one we did!

DT: How is this tequila supposed to be enjoyed? And how was it made to ensure its quality and taste?

KW: This is a sipping tequila, baby! The product we sourced is to enjoy slowly. The flavor is reflective of the production and aging process. Proper agave can take almost a decade to mature. Not only does it produce a superior product, but it is also sustainable. That was important to me. Carefully maturing the liquid in barrels is an art unto itself. Without the proper oversight and expertise, the distinct agave character can be lost in oak aging. We found a producer who has mastered the art.

DT: The bottle is a work of art in itself; what was the idea behind this beautiful package?

KW: We wanted a package that was as well crafted and cared for as the product itself. With that in mind, we commissioned artists to hand-paint the bottles. If you look at the bottom, you will see that each artist has included their logo. We also distinguished ourselves with the one-liter bottle. This size is uncommon in the industry, and the single batch is extremely limited in quantity. Once it’s gone, it’s gone. To steal from Emily Dickinson, “That it will never come again is what makes it so sweet.”

Plans to follow up this fantastic new product with a Blanco and Cristalino Tequila are in the works. Come by to taste this excellent item and get a limited edition bottle while they last.
All are welcome at our annual festival celebrating Mexico’s rich culture and heritage. Enjoy the rhythm of Flamenco and Latin beats, the sounds of the mariachi, and the swirls of dancers performing throughout our village.

Cinco de Mayo—which translates to the Fifth of May—marks Mexico’s surprise 1862 victory over the French at the Battle of Puebla during the Franco-Mexican war and its eventual independence.

Come celebrate with us! A free event for the whole family. Get ready for enthralling Flamenco music and dancing performed by Gaetano Mosaico Flamenco. Be wowed by the talented dancers of Ballet Folklorico, a dance troupe of all ages, twirling and swirling in vibrantly colorful, time honored costumes. When they dance they tell stories of the rituals and dramatic events form Mexico’s past. Enjoy the voices of traditional vocalists ringing out throughout the village, and stroll alongside the roaming Mariachi.

Activities for children include face painting and the highly anticipated breaking of the piñata. Traditional Mexican dishes and treats will also be available for purchase from local vendors.

The Navajo Nation is located where the corners of northeastern Arizona, northwestern New Mexico, and southeastern Utah meet. Extending more than 27,000 square miles, it is the largest land area retained by a Native American tribe in the United States and home to approximately 180,000 people.

The deep influence of the Diné on Sedona, Arizona, and the southwest is inseparable. From its art, architecture, food, landscape, and way of life, it is woven into the culture like a pattern in an ancient Navajo tapestry. Integral and essential to its story and beauty. This makes the hardship, neglect, and discrimination that the Navajo people suffer so pertinent and hard to accept. Disproportionately affected by economics, housing, and health crises, they have some of the highest rates of obesity, diabetes, suicide, and now COVID-19 in the country.

The Navajo reservation is located approximately 180,000 people. As of February 8, 2021, there were 28,937 confirmed cases and 1,060 deaths from Covid-19 on the reservation. Although just a small representation of the US population, these numbers are alarming. They represent more cases per capita than almost any other location in the country. And yet, due to the Navajo Nation’s strength and autonomy, they have implemented a comprehensive response to the pandemic. Strict curfews, masking, hand washing, and social distancing practices have been in place.

Vivian Descheny recounts how these practices are starting to be a part of life. Emotional and spiritual isolation is also taking a toll. A highly communal and ceremonial people, gatherings are not possible at this time. "We can’t come together in groups or visit each other," Vivian notes. "No funerals, no ceremonies." There is a deep need for healing that is hard to achieve and also fear that aspects of their culture are being lost. With the passing of each tribal member from Covid-19—especially the elders, medicine people, and artists—a unique connection to the Diné traditions is disappearing. Their language, stories, prayers, songs, and art forms are in danger. In regular times, these are the things that bring them together, connect them and provide them comfort. But in these times, they can’t.

"We’re losing the only people who knew these things, the elders," says Vivian. "They taught us herbs for healing, traditional songs, traditional prayers, and it all has come to a halt." Vivian also speaks solemnly about losing the elderly women who were artisans and “our best weavers and teachers.”

In a culture rooted in tradition and a quest for harmony, the elders are the threads that link them to the past and help prepare them for the future, and this connection is being dangerously broken.
MAKING A DIFFERENCE
MARCELLA HALE & CROWN POINT NAVAJO RUG AUCTION

An example of helping one another can be found in Marcella Hale, in whom generosity and dedication run deep. A member of the Navajo Nation, she is the Treasurer of the Navajo Weavers Association.

During non-Covid times, Marcella runs the Crown Point Navajo Rug Auction in New Mexico. Started in 1963, these community-based events, held on the second Friday of every month, brought together Navajo weavers and the collectors of Diné art and culture.

For many, this auction provided them with their only source of income. It attracted as many as 250 Navajo weavers who traveled long distances to get their rugs to auction and, as the Crown Point Navajo Rug Auction communications note, “to share the beauty of the Diné people” with others.

Due to Covid, the auctions have been suspended, but Marcella continues to dedicate her time to supporting the weavers. She helps to sell rugs on their behalf and provides much-needed support to the weaving community.

A note from Marcella on the Crown Point Navajo Rug Auction website reads: “I’m doing this to help the weavers, on my own time. The commission is not being deducted from [them]. If you have any questions, you can call me or text me at (505) 362-8502. If I do not pick up, leave me a message and I’ll return your call. Be safe, wash your hands, wear your mask. We are all thinking of you and miss you all…”

Unlike when a sale is made at auction, her new process has many more steps to ensure a safe and successful transaction. Marcella personally travels long distances to deliver payment to the weavers at their homes. There, she picks up the rug and brings it to be shipped to the buyer. While there, she also brings cleaning supplies and other things necessary for their survival. In November, the Navajo Weavers Association gave $75 gift cards so that families could have a Thanksgiving dinner.

Although Marcella is hopeful, she notes that she doesn’t know what the future will hold or when the auction will resume. The help that is needed is ongoing, and she too will continue to do her part.

Those interested in purchasing a rug or making a donation can visit crownpointrugauction.com or directly reach Marcella at (505) 362-8502.

LINDA AND MARK WINTER, TOADLENA TRADING POST & BLESSINGWAY

Located on the Navajo Reservation in New Mexico, this historic trading post has supported Navajo weavers since 1909. During non-pandemic times, on a typical day 775 weavers may stop by. With the reservations closed, so is the trading post. However, Linda and Mark continue to support the area’s weavers, aiding in rug sales through the trading post and its website.

In 2016, in collaboration with friend and partner James Collins, the couple established a charitable organization called Blessingway to provide aid to those committed to the continuation of the Navajo weaving tradition and in need of financial assistance for their education.

Since May 2020, with the challenges of the Covid-19 pandemic, they have worked to keep the community safe and healthy. Blessingway organizes a monthly Covid relief drive-thru event providing food, PPE, sanitizer, and other necessary items to local families. As Linda notes, “We begin distribution at 10 a.m., but cars start to line up at 7 a.m. before we’ve even had our coffee! Within two hours, we have given everything away to a little over 200 families.”

The organization’s name comes from a Navajo healing ceremony performed to help the sick and the lost to be in harmony with the world and “walk in beauty.” They hope that for us all.

100% of the donations made to Blessingway go directly to the local Navajo community. Those interested in making a contribution can email Linda and Mark at toadlena@hotmail.com or send their tax-deductible gifts to Blessingway, P.O. Box 131, Embudo, NM 87531.

Navajo weaving is a distinct art form done primarily by females. It is a traditional and spiritual practice for the Navajo, usually done by hand, on wooden looms, as it was by their ancestors. Navajo weaving has a broad range of unique design styles, including the Burnwater designs below.

Cats are enchanting, mystical creatures. So it’s no surprise they would be a favorite subject of the internationally-renowned artist Nicholas Kirsten Honshin.

Honshin’s work is an amalgamation of ancient healing practices, spirituality, science, and nature, resulting in an East meets West perspective that is mesmerizing and enlightening.

Since 2010 he has created a new Zen Cat calendar every year, channeling his view of the world through cat art and poetry. Each month is an inspiring mediation for people to practice the principles of love, compassion, kindness, and joy in living in the present moment.

The Zen Cat Series origins come in part from Honshin’s childhood experiences visiting Bay Area coffeehouses with his father, Daiensai Kuden Bosseki Dojin, a renowned artist and ordained Buddhist Priest. There they would encounter Beat Generation Artists such as Allen Ginsburg, William S. Burroughs, and Jack Kerouac. “The musicians were often referred to as ‘real cool cats,’” Honshin recalls, “and when they were also practicing Buddhism, the name evolved to ‘Zen Cat.’” The series is also a reflection of... his many feline encounters over the years, including one cat who would crawl into his lap as he read the Buddhist Sutras. “I would read the sutras out loud to her,” says Honshin, “and she was in such stillness, such presence, I would think she is getting this more than I am.”

The 2021 Zen Cats calendar is produced by Amber Lotus Publishing of Portland, Oregon—an independent carbon-negative company that has planted one million trees since 2008 to offset its environmental footprint. The calendar is available online or at Honshin’s Galleries in two sizes, along with a series of greeting cards. An excellent gift for any feline and art lover.

At the heart of Tlaquepaque Village is the Patio Azul, a quiet, romantic courtyard that will make you feel transported to a faraway land and time.

As with all of Tlaquepaque, special care was taken when this elegant courtyard was built by Abe Miller in the 1970s. Entering the Patio Azul, guests walk through its impressive gateway with hand carved wooden doors to arrive at the opulently decorated patio. As in all proper Mexican Colonial architecture, its centerpiece is the sculptural fountain that serves as not just a beautiful visual and sensual element—its water in continual motion, soothing visitors with its musical splashing noises—but also as an evaporative cooler to fend off the heat of the long Sedona summer days. Looking above one relishes the beauty of the floor to ceiling windows and balconies decorated with hand forged, antique iron brought to Sedona by Abe and his team from Morelia, a city in the state of Michoacán in central Mexico famous for its colonial city center.

The beauty and artistry of the Patio Azul extends into its adjacent shops and restaurants, where vigas (wooden beams) line the ceilings and rest against beautiful corbels (brackets). The quality of the architecture carries into the shops’ collections too, a treasure of curation and craftsmanship that is not to be missed.

A SUSTAINABLE CATERING COMPANY DOING THINGS DIFFERENTLY

A zero-waste catering event? Yes, and that is just one of the things that makes Atlanta Catering so special. Atlanta is an exclusive vendor, this Phoenix-based company takes an innovative approach to catering and event planning. With a passion for community and the environment, they are leading the way in sustainable catering. Helping Brides, Grooms, and their guests to celebrate knowing they are supporting the local community and being good guardians of the environment. Atlanta brings joy in the moment and through their mission.

Steve Short, the owner of Atlanta and an award-winning chef, is the company’s visionary. He grew up in the kitchen of his father’s Phoenix BBQ-style restaurant. There he learned first-hand about the joys, challenges, and responsibilities of working in the foodservice industry. In 2009, he had an epiphany, largely brought on by the recession’s impact, Steve shifted Atlanta’s focus to sustainability. “I thought it would be simple,” he says, “but I soon discovered it was an all-encompassing, enormously complex undertaking.” He got help from outside sources, and Atlanta successfully achieved its zero-landfill status, where it remains today.

Steve and his team continually look at how they can lessen environmental impact, and best serve the community by donating time, money, and service to those who need it most. At the same time, they never lose sight of their dedication to providing high-quality, creative food and curated experiences. As passionate as they are about the environment, they are about sourcing the freshest farm-to-table ingredients and expertly preparing them into dishes that, as they note, “delight the senses and satisfy the appetite.”

Like many businesses, Atlanta has had to evolve and adapt during the pandemic. Some of the options they offer include fully-serviced buffets behind plexiglass, individually packaged and covered meals, and creative seating arrangements. They have also launched Atlanta Fast Lane, which brings their farm-fresh tastes, boxed meals, and packaged buffets directly to their customers across the Valley of The Sun.

Forty-seven years ago, Abe Miller, founder of Tlaquepaque, imagined a bustling arts village rich in south-of-the-border culture and a thriving arts community. As the village has evolved, so have the options for exceptional dining experiences. With safety measures in place, patio dining is in full swing. It’s the perfect time of year to be outside, shaded under the coolness of the giant sycamore trees or colorful umbrellas. From elegant bistro dining at René, tapas and margaritas at El Rincon, handcrafted beers and BBQ ribs at Oak Creek Brewery and Grill, delicious salads and panini at Secret Garden Café, or exceptional brunches and an eclectic menu at the new Pump House Eatery, it’s all here for your dining pleasure.

Enter the patio of the Secret Garden Café and find yourself in a setting that envelops you in lush greenery. Sit alongside fragrant flower beds under the shade from towering pines. If just sitting there is quite therapeutic, then the healthy fresh cuisine is beyond nurturing. Offering a menu of creatively prepared fresh ingredients, with gluten-free and vegan selections, the Secret Garden Café is the perfect choice for breakfast, lunch, or dinner. Specializing in soups, salads, sandwiches, and their famous Quesa “Divas,” be sure to consider a sinful dessert item, specialty Kona coffees, teas, juices, wines, and beer.

Oak Creek Brewery and Grill in Tlaquepaque is known for its award-winning premium brews, brewed on-site and stored in highly polished, custom copper serving tanks behind its classic oak bar. The fabulous brews, big cozy booths, wood-fired pizza oven, high-energy open kitchen, and fantastic views make it the perfect gathering place for Sedona visitors, family, and returning friends. Its popular second-story patio with red rock views has bar-style seating around the patio perimeter, a larger central table, and smaller two-person tables that create an intimate, protected outdoor space that fills up quickly.

El Rincon is a Tlaquepaque icon. The outside patio is shaded by bright umbrellas and is the perfect setting for casual dining. Serving traditional Mexican food with Navajo influences, El Rincon’s “Arizona Style” is truly unique. Chimichangas, the house specialty, are made with sopapilla masa, deep-fried and served enchilada style with Spanish rice and beans, or a sumptuous guacamole salad. In the summer months, Sundays through Tuesdays, El Rincon celebrates “Flamenco Music in the Courtyard,” where you can treat yourself to tapas or your favorite beverage from their patio bar.

The Pump House is a Sedona locals favorite, and for a good reason. With its rustic retro urban vibe, the place feels immediately familiar. The staff is super friendly and relaxed, and there are great options for patio dining. Try the tables and high tops under the cozy front porch, or head to the back patio dining area where bar seating faces an oasis of green grass and giant sycamores. Coffees are first class, as are the sinful pastries if you’re on the go. Brunch fare, lunches, and dinners always hit the mark. Savoring a craft beer, specialty wines, or a cocktail from the full bar while enjoying the great outdoors is simply the best.

René Restaurant has been a Tlaquepaque fine-dining favorite since 1977 when it was one of only two restaurants in town. The menu at this elegant European-inspired restaurant is a blend of Continental Cuisine coupled with a hint of a classic French influence introduced some twenty-five years ago by original owner/chef René Baudat. For wine lovers, René is exceptional. Wine Spectator has given René the “Award of Excellence” since 2003. The wine list is impressive with over 165 different labels, old and new world offerings, with expanded French, South African, and California vintages. Cradled in an intimate shaded courtyard with plenty of bistro tables, a special summer afternoon menu for patio patrons has just the right balance.

Tlaquepaque’s restaurants are committed to providing dining experiences that are safe and memorable. It is highly recommended to make reservations on Friday and Saturday evenings and during special events. All of Tlaquepaque’s restaurants are pet-friendly. Management does require that all furry friends remain on a leash and close by their owners at all times. No matter what you are in the mood for, there is always something delicious to discover at Tlaquepaque.

A Look Back

THE PEOPLE BEHIND TLAQUEPAQUE
Tlaquepaque founder Abe Miller with his wife and daughter Carolyn standing proudly in Patio de las Campañas during the construction of the arts and shopping village. This photo was taken in December 1974 for an article in a Tucson paper Citizen by art critic Robert Quinn.
On August 29, 2020, Maya Shovestull and Ryan Haines were married under an Arizona blue sky and the ivy-covered arches of Tlaquepaque’s elegant Patio de las Campañas. This is a wedding that might not have happened were it not for “a simple swipe right,” as Maya tells it, and the “incredibly supportive, flexible team at Tlaquepaque.” They helped to solve for “covid curveballs” and ensure the safety of the couple’s guests and vendors. Unable to travel far due to restrictions, the couple still wanted a location that would feel like a destination wedding. Sedona offered them that. “It’s one of the most beautiful places anyone will ever travel to,” says Maya. And Tlaquepaque’s beauty and uniqueness was the topper on the cake, allowing them to tailor their wedding to match their vision and make the moment, even during the toughest of times, a memorable one.

REMEMBERING FLOYD

SAYING GOODBYE TO OUR BELOVED TLAQUEPAQUE MASCOT

A joyful trot, big smile, and a crazy appetite for treats, Floyd was Tlaquepaque’s most loving and loyal community member. This gorgeous golden came to work every day ready to comfort those missing their furry friends back home and making new friends as he nuzzled up to greet people and give them a paw.

Floyd had a busy social life as he stopped by to say hello to gallery and shop owners on his daily rounds of the village. Our beloved friend will be forever missed. Thank you for teaching patience, happiness, loyalty, love, and companionship to the Tlaquepaque family — you are a true angel of love.

Animals should also not be left in your car, especially during the warmer months.
