Academic Writer and Your Learning Management System
This handout provides an overview of the available LTI integration for institutional site license customers.

Learning Tools Interoperability® (LTI) is a standard created by the IMS Global Learning Consortium that integrates content and resources to learning management systems (LMSs) and other portals.

Getting Started
An LMS administrator must set up the initial LTI integration before you can add a link to a course. Talk to your campus LMS administrator to find out if LTI integration is set up for your campus. If you have administrator rights for your LMS and would like to set up LTI integration for your campus, contact us at academicwriter@apa.org and specify which LMS and version you use.

Accessing Academic Writer
Academic Writer LTI integration is designed to provide access to the Academic Writer homepage. You can use the tools in your LMS to add a link to Academic Writer in any course module.

The example above (from Blackboard) shows the link to Academic Writer in the Course Tools folder of the Content area of the course. The process for adding Academic Writer to courses will vary by LMS. Refer to our LMS-specific documentation, your LMS administrator, or instructional technology department if you need more information about how to add it to your course.

Academic Writer Accounts
An account is required to use Academic Writer through your LMS. Regardless of your role (LMS administrator, faculty, or student), you will be prompted to create an account (or log in using your existing account) the first time you select an Academic Writer link in the LMS. (This is for the first time only; you will not be asked to log in again when accessing Academic Writer in your LMS.)
