It's safe to say that most of us begin to think about our retirement fairly early in our careers. But many of us haven't given as much thought to other important decisions we need to make in case of an emergency.

Please join us for one of our free webinars that will review what you need to put in order now - such as legal documents and clear instructions for certain scenarios - to ensure your family does not have to scramble to make decisions later.

Topics we will be addressing:

- Why should we make any plans now, when things seem so uncertain these days?
- What decisions do we need to make - whether we are still building our professional and family lives, or as we approach retirement?
- What can we do now to help our family and also ensure our wishes are followed?

National Retirement Security Week Oct. 18-24

The 3rd week in October is National Retirement Security Week.

Complete retirement planning includes the obviously financially-driven decisions on when to stop working, what you would like to do in your retirement, and where you would like to live.

It also includes making sure you have advance directives, and allocates resources for things like long-term care. And - whether we like to think about it or not - it also includes planning for your funeral.
