Sam Stones completed his PGCE Business at Leeds Trinity University in 2015. In the three years since then, Sam has made a big impact in his teaching career, quickly progressing to Associate Leader in the Faculty of Maths, Computing, Economics and Business. He has carried out research on the progression of white-working class boys, led an international four-week residential trip to Borneo, been published in education journals, and worked as an examiner and moderator. He is also studying for a Masters in Education at Leeds Trinity University and mentors current PGCE students there. Last November, in recognition of everything he has achieved, he was named as a Yorkshire Teacher of the Year.

Sam’s is one of many success stories from Leeds Trinity University’s PGCE programmes. Having trained teachers for over 50 years, the University has developed a supportive and flexible structure for its University-led route which gives you the time to gradually develop confidence and experience at your own pace – whether you join them with plenty of school experience or are changing careers after a long time out of education. It also offers School Direct and School-Centred Initial Teacher Training routes, for those who feel ready to go straight into a school.

All three routes provide a wide range of subject areas – from Maths to Modern Foreign Languages – and benefit from hundreds of partnerships that the University has developed across the region. From small rural primary schools to inner-city high schools, these partnerships ensure that you’ll develop the knowledge, skills and practical experience you need to teach.

Where you choose to train will have a long-term impact on your teaching career, so it’s crucial that you make a decision that’s right for you. To find out more about training to teach at Leeds Trinity, the University is holding a PGCE Open Day on Saturday 23rd February, 11am – 2pm. To book your place, visit leedstrinity.ac.uk/pgce.

Life & Style

Where Could a PGCE from Leeds Trinity University Take You?

Take your career to the next level with a postgraduate degree from Leeds Trinity University

Interested in taking your studies further?

Postgraduate and Foundation Degree Open Evening
Wednesday 20 February, 4.30pm – 7.30pm

Are you interested in studying at postgraduate level? Would you like the opportunity to gain a formal qualification while you work?

Book your place today – leedstrinity.ac.uk/postgraduate

Interested in training to teach?

PGCE Open Day
Saturday 23 February, 11.00am – 2.00pm

If you’re interested in becoming a teacher, come to our PGCE Open Day to discover why studying at Leeds Trinity University could be the start of an amazing and rewarding teaching career.

Book your place today – leedstrinity.ac.uk/pgce

For more information on our postgraduate courses, visit leedstrinity.ac.uk/postgraduate or call 0113 283 7150