I love saying thank you with a thank you gift! Thank you cards are great, but they're even better when they're paired with a gift! If you want to be REALLY extra, you could make this Starbucks candle in this cute mug and pair it with this gift card gift! HOWEVER, a stand-alone gift card never feels very personal to me, so I always try to amp it up a bit by adding it to another small gift, or with a custom card like this thank you a latte card! You will need: Starbucks Gift Card Cardstock Glue Dots or Hot Glue Gun Scissors Free Printable Starbucks Thank You A Latte Cards (Fill out the form below!) When you print the cards, they will print two-to-a-page. Keep this in mind if you need multiple. Use scissors to cut them out along the dark green line. Pro Tip: Print these cards out on cardstock paper for the best results. Regular paper won't hold up to the weight of a gift card. Once you have your gift card, and your thanks a latte card cut out, you're ready to put them together. To attach your gift card to the cardstock you have a couple of options. Glue Dots. This will be the best way to attach your gift card to the cardstock. It won't damage the card or the paper, but holds well and is quick to apply. You can find them on Amazon here. Hot Glue. Use a small line of hot glue on the back of the card to attach it. This will tear the card when the card is removed, just FYI. Double-Sided Tape. This works well, but doesn't hold well long-term. You can also find that on Amazon here. Once your gift card is attached to the thanks a latte card, it's ready to gift! Did you know I have more versions of this card too? It's a fun way to dress up a gift card in a creative way, or add it to a little gift you put together for a coffee lover! Some ideas for how to use it include: A teacher appreciation gift for teachers- instead of giving a traditional coffee mug, give a reusable water cup, so they can use it all year long & in the classroom & fill it up with their favorite drinks. Or just give it as a thank-you gift to someone you want to bless (neighbor, family member, etc.). It could also work for Fathers day or Mothers day too. I love the idea that you can put whatever amount you want on a card (most coffee spots will let you get gift card from $5 up), so it is perfect if you are looking for a small gift or a splurge one. Grab a Starbucks card or better yet, find your teacher's favorite coffee stand and buy a gift card (my husband prefers this as he can then earn his stamps towards free drinks). You can just give the card with the gift card attached or give them a little gift set with the reusable drink as well! These Free Printable Movie gift cards, also make another fun ideas for Teacher appreciation gift ideas. Free Thanks a LATTE Printable Card: You could just print this out on cardstock at home for a quick, simple gift or if you have time, you could upload the PDF to a photo site & print it off at a place such as Costco, Walgreens, etc. so that it will be glossy & professional looking. I just printed mine on cardstock and I think it turned out great (I used cream cardstock since that's what I had on hand).

How to Make this Teacher Appreciation Card: This card is so simple to make - if you want to make it really easy, just print off the FREE printable on cardstock or photo paper and then glue your coffee gift card right on there. That makes a unique card right there! Or you can add a few more touches to it: Add the cardboard to look like a sleeve holder for gift card (I just used the inside of a coffee sleeve cover from Starbucks & cut it to fit) Add twine or baker's twine Punch a hole & add a ribbon to attach to the straw of your reusable drink cup Coffee Lovers Gift Set: For the gift set, I had a cute plastic, mason jar reusable cup that I got from a friend & I thought it was the perfect cup! I've seen similar ones at Walmart, Costco (in the past -not sure if they're there now), Michaels & more. I added in some Starbucks Via as well as some yummy chocolates to make it a fun gift for the coffee lover! You could also use a Starbucks reusable cup (prices typically start around $9.95 & up). These cups hold up so well - I love mine! They also now have glass Starbucks reusable cups, too, if they prefer glass over plastic.
