

NEWS RELEASE

The Scottish Criminal Cases Review Commission ('the Commission') has referred the case of Moira Hunter to the High Court of Justiciary.

In accordance with the Commission's statutory obligations, a statement of reasons for its decision has been sent to the High Court, Faculty Appeals Service and Crown Office. The Commission has no power under its founding statute to make copies of its statements of reasons available to the public.

On 30 November 2017, at Kilmarnock Sheriff Court, Ms Hunter was convicted of an aggravated contravention of the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991. A fine and an order disqualifying her from owning dogs for 5 years were imposed upon her along with an order for the immediate destruction of the dog. (The destruction order was later suspended by the High Court pending the Commission's consideration of Ms Hunter's application.)

The Commission has decided to refer the case, in respect of the destruction order only, to the High Court. A viable alternative to accommodate and manage the risk posed by the dog having now been proposed, it appears to the Commission that the High Court may wish to consider substituting a contingent destruction order. (By which order requirements in respect of the future control of the dog might be imposed and the dog's destruction take place only if those requirements were not met.)

Notes for Editors

The Scottish Criminal Cases Review Commission was established as an independent body on 1 April 1999 to review alleged miscarriages of justice in Scottish convictions and/or sentences. Under section 194 A to L of the Criminal Procedure (Scotland) Act 1995 (as inserted by section 25 of the Crime and Punishment (Scotland) Act 1997) the Commission can refer a case to the High Court if it believes that a miscarriage of justice may have occurred and that it is in the interests of justice that a reference should be made. Once a case is referred to the High Court by the Commission, it will proceed as a normal appeal.

The Commission operates with a Board of 7 Members, one of whom is the Chairperson, a Chief Executive, a Director of Corporate Services, Head of Casework, 2 Senior Legal Officers, 4 Legal Officers and administrative support staff.

In terms of its disclosure policy, the Commission will disclose the fact that a case has been referred. However, as it operated under strict statutory non-disclosure provisions, the Commission will not disclose any further information about such cases.

For any further general information about the Commission please contact Mr Chris Reddick, Director of Corporate Services, SCCRC, 5th Floor, Portland House, 17 Renfield Street, Glasgow, Tel: 0141 270 7030, e-mail: creddick@sccrc.org.uk or visit the Commission's website at www.sccrc.org.uk
