

Empathy Postcard Messages from Children

I read 'The Journey,' it helped me understand what it must feel like to move from another country to another and I feel really sad for refugees. How could we make a difference to how refugees are welcome to the countries?

I read 'Mr. Stink' it helped me understand that you should never judge someone by how they look or smell and how tragic someone's life can be.

How could we make a difference to poor and Homeless people?

Some people should treat the refugees kindly because, at the end of the day, we're all humans.

Learning about refugees made me think about books like One by Morris Gleitzman. The boy in that was a refugee too. All of those books made me understand what it must have been like to be hated in the war.

I read 'Mr Stink', it helped me understand that homeless people should be treated the same as us. How could we make a difference to homeless people living on the dirty, cold streets?

I can't imagine leaving everything at home. I'd have to leave my family, my pets, my books and my home. All my memories would be left behind. How could they take their memories with them?

I read 'Everybody's welcome' it helped me understand that every body should always be welcome. How could we make a difference to people who come into our country?

People don't realise how hard it is to leave your country because of war. Refugees always go through this pain.

We ~~should~~ should try and help the refugees by giving them a place to stay and food to eat.

~~People don't realise, how much pain refugees go~~

~~through. We should welcome refugees from all over~~

~~the world to our community.~~

I read 'The Whisperer.' It helped me understand that no-one should be treated differently just because they are not the same as others. How could we make a difference to those who are treated badly for being different?

People don't realise ^{how} unwelcoming some communities are to refugees.
We should all try to be more accepting to everybody.
How can we make a difference?

People don't realise how hard it is to make friends in new places and how mean people can be. We should try to be more welcoming to people who have had a hard past. They are people too! Even so people who have had a hard past can not be pushed to make friends. They need a little time and space. DO NOT turn them away! I think too many people judge people by their past, looks / back ground or what they wear. Be kind.

People don't realise how horrible it would be to lose your family and to leave your country. We should make refugees feel welcome.

I read 'the journey' it helped me understand that it could be hard to travel far away from home. How could we make a difference to children who had to leave their home because of war?

People don't realise how dreadful some can be to others in our community. As a community, we should look out for each other. I suggest we look out and help each other more and welcome more people to our communities which I think will help us alot.

If you're a refugee, it doesn't mean your different to anyone else. Everyone is the same.
