GISC offers ongoing professional development groups for leaders and managers looking to build on their in-person learning. Groups typically meet monthly via online video conference for 120-minute sessions, scheduled at a time convenient to the group.

GISC Leadership Faculty and Coaches

- Group and Peer Coaching
  Expand your leadership agility and explore new ways to meet workplace challenges in a supportive, confidential group setting under the guidance of an experienced leadership coach.

- Ongoing Learning and Support
  Address work issues and questions, applying the concepts you learned in your GISC leadership program.

- Practice Gestalt Leadership Concepts
  Solidify your learning and practice new ways of being a more effective leader or manager in your business or organization.

Connect with a community of peers, where you will have an opportunity to work on professional dilemmas and challenges, explore self-awareness issues, and bring case studies to the group to widen and deepen your leadership skills.

Benefits

As a participant in this program you will:

- Increase awareness of yourself as a leader
- Better articulate goals and leadership challenges
- Gain insight into current work issues
- Practice the use of key Gestalt leadership concepts to address everyday situations
- Strengthen ability to assess employee issues and see patterns
- Identify obstacles that interfere with optimal leadership
- Enhance leadership presence and skill with using oneself as an instrument of influence and change
- Experience ongoing support and perspective from faculty and other participants

Participants

This program is designed especially for graduates of GISC leadership programs who are seeking a group of dedicated peers with whom to engage in ongoing professional development and support under the guidance of an experienced leadership coach and member of the GISC leadership faculty.
