

search the AFR

PREMIUM

NEWS ▾ BUSINESS ▾ MARKETS ▾ STREET TALK REAL ESTATE ▾ OPINION ▾ TECHNOLOGY ▾ PERSONAL FINANCE ▾ LEADERSHIP ▾ LIFESTYLE ▾ ALL ▾

Home / Rear Window

REAR WINDOW Apr 12 2016 at 6:36 PM Updated Apr 12 2016 at 8:31 PM

Save Article

Print

License Article

Luminis Partners link up with chancellor David Gonski's UNSW

UNSW chancellor David Gonski. Finally, some good news. Dominic Lorrimer

by Will Glasgow

We were kind of hoping the Luminis Partners crew would celebrate the business's first birthday by buying a solid gold ping-pong table.

Instead, Ron Malek, Simon Mordant, Peter Brownie and Jamie Garis committed $1 million to a scholarship program at the UNSW Business School (Malek's alma mater), which includes an international exchange at The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania (Mordant's alma mater).

Both UNSW chancellor David Gonski and the first lady Lucy Turnbull were along on Tuesday afternoon to launch the program.

It will fund 11 scholars, the first starting next year. A happy development in the on-the-nose local financial sector.