

Does pay for essay work?

How it all started

My girlfriend has a nephew who is in eighth grade. He once called her. They often call up, as their parents were friends in childhood, respectively, and they are friends. Well, and he talks about how lazy it is to write essays, especially according to the norms of the Unified State Examination, since they immediately prepare to write correctly. And so every time, then literature, then the Russian language. He is studying for four-fives, so I was surprised that he was too lazy to write essays. Nevertheless, he asked us to write to him. Well, I jokingly said, let's pay, and we will write. He agreed. I wrote an article, but of course I didn't take money from it, but I thought why not try to implement it via the Internet.

writing an essay

How lazy it is to write essays!

Think for yourself: because nowadays young people don't want to write all these essays, waste time, and you can't write them off from the Internet, because teachers are also not stupid people and they will immediately understand that the text is from some source.

So I started thinking how to find schoolchild clients through this very Internet. He dwelled on the fact that you can simply tell the niece to tell him about his compositions, and someone would respond. Indeed, from his school alone, about five people wrote me VK. I'll tell you in more detail how I looked for orders and completed them.

Online orders

The first five clients, as I said, studied with my nephew. Then I began to search the Internet for similar offers. And to be honest, I was amazed at how many requests to write an essay. The approximate price varies within three hundred rubles. It is a good composition, by all the norms of the English

Is it illegal to pay someone to write essays? - No!

I note one more point. I did this not on the announcement site. I went to a certain site where there was a registration, account, balance and everything was clean (this is me about reviews on the Internet). The system was something like this: I took the order, wrote an essay, handed it over to the administration, they checked for the conditions of the order and then already paid money from the customer's wallet.