Location:
Virtual Summit

As we look to 2021 with growing optimism, we are pleased to invite you to register for a KPMG Virtual Tax & Legal Summit for the Latin America region, where we will explore emerging tax and legal considerations, unpack some of the challenges facing businesses in the post-COVID era, and consider the bright spots and opportunities for tax leaders and their teams as we emerge from this period.

We have confirmed leading economic thinker Vijay Vaitheeswaran, Senior Editor of The Economist as our opening keynote, and we look forward to announcing additional speakers in the lead-up to the event.

This Summit will include:

- Perspectives and predictions for the economy around the world in 2021 and beyond.
- Examination and discussion of the key tax issues arising for businesses in the new reality, including consideration of developing business, operating and workforce models.
- An update on developments from the OECD, including progress on the work on the digital economy (BEPS 2.0), tax transparency, and tax certainty.
- Views from local tax authority representatives in terms of why the pandemic has changed the relationship between businesses and tax authorities in the past year, and how an accelerated shift to digital will further shape interactions.
- A look at how tax departments are transforming in this environment, including case study stories from tax leaders as to how some key technologies are making a difference.

Following the Summit, we will provide a certificate of attendance letter to eligible attendees that you may use to apply for CPE (or equivalent).

Although this message relates to the Latin America region, similar sessions will be held virtually for the Asia Pacific and EMA regions within a similar timeframe. If you prefer to attend one of the other regional events, please let us know.
