Professional Care at Home After a Hospitalization or Surgery

An unexpected hospitalization and a planned surgery have one thing in common: when coming home, it is hard to know at what level you will function and how long it will take to resume normal activities. Whether for a few days or longer term, pre-arranging a Regency Home Care caregiver who understands the specific care requirements can provide you with the comfort needed to focus on recuperation or rehabilitation, while the caregiver also keeps the household running smoothly.

Regency Home Care provides whatever help is needed, including:

- Transportation home from the hospital and to follow-up appointments
- Connections to resources in the community
- Assistance with in-home medical equipment or telehealth
- A safety assessment of the home to avoid tripping hazards
- Bathing assistance
- Ambulation supervision to prevent falls
- Exercise/activity as allowed by the physician
- Meals that follow any dietary restrictions, such as a low-sodium or low-fat diet
- Implementation of an activity/exercise plan

A Better Understanding of Medications

Once home from the hospital, taking medication regularly as prescribed is a key component to recovery.

Regency Home Care caregivers can:

- Pick up prescriptions
- Teach the importance of medications
- Provide medication reminders
- Recognize undesired reactions to medications

Early Recognition of Health Complications

Through regular home care visits, our caregivers are often the first to notice a change in conditions after surgery or a hospitalization, and always take action quickly when recognizing these and other key health indicators:

- Post-operative infection
- Undesired reactions to medications
- Changes in fluid intake or output
- Swollen ankles
- Shortness of breath
- Unexplained increased fatigue
- Signs and symptoms of a blood clot

Pre-arrange post-discharge assistance from Regency Home Care and let us work with you to develop a plan of care to meet all of your post-operative care and personal needs to ensure a smooth and speedy recovery in the comfort of home.
