

Oxley Nature Center Newsletter

Volume 151

May/June, 2004

Friends of the Oxley Nature Center

Imagine it's early fall. The late afternoon eases into evening, cooling the air. The sixty or so kerosene lanterns hanging in the trees begin to glow warmly. There are large boulders in a ring around the campfire. People are gathered there. It's a convenient place to sit and talk. There is laughter. Presently everyone gathers at the shelter. It's time to eat: grilled chicken hotdogs and potluck. Get a cup of hot chocolate or apple cider. Pick a table among the tall pin oaks and eat under the glow of lantern light. Hang around because there is story telling at the campfire. Make a s'more. Climb on the hay wagon and go for a ride into the woods and across the prairie. Who knows what might happen? Maybe the stars will be bright or maybe owls will call one another or maybe we'll even see deer staring back at us in the dusk.

This is an opportunity for members of Friends of Oxley Nature Center. This event is held each autumn.
